Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 15 a (new)

Motion for a resolution	Amendment
	15a. Notes that the current architecture of the Union's relations with third countries, based on candidate countries, association agreements, strategic partnerships, the European Economic Area and sectoral cooperation, has become fragmented and indecipherable, leading to a constant state of ambiguity over accession prospects; as a result, proposes a new status of 'Associate State', which would not lead to accession and which would be split into five different levels according to the level of convergence and shared interests: Advanced Associate States, Convergent Associate States, Strategic Associate States, Allied Associate States and Cooperating Associate States; underlines that this status must allow progressive, conditional and reversible involvement in certain Union policies, in particular the internal market, infrastructure, energy, security and defence, critical technologies, migration and the fight against terrorism, without any participation in decision-making within the Union's institutions; calls on the Commission and the Council to put forward a proposal to that effect;

	15f. Is deeply appalled by Serbia organising a funeral with state honours for the war criminal Ratko Mladic, who is responsible among other horrendous war crimes for the genocide in Srebrenica; underlines that the trajectory pursued by Serbia under the leadership of Aleksandar

Vučić, including the violent reaction to the year-long peaceful protests, wide-spread glorification of war criminals and crimes, deeply entrenched state-capture, rampant corruption, long-time manipulative anti-EU narrative spread by government-controlled media and by some senior Serbian officials and members of the governing party, and the continuously worsening situation of democracy, rule of law, fundamental freedoms, including media freedom, will not lead the country into the European Union; notes with grave concern the destabilizing role Serbia is playing in the region, thereby jeopardizing progress towards peace and prosperity and posing a serious threat to the EU's own security, including through its strategic engagement such as military and security cooperation with Russia and China; calls on the Member States and the European Commission, including at the highest political level, to put an end to the policy of appeasement towards President Vučić and to ensure that Union funds allocated to Serbia do not accrue to the benefit of the government, but are directed primarily towards strengthening civil society and supporting independent media; reiterates its long-standing position that accession negotiations with Serbia should only advance if the country aligns with EU sanctions against Russia and makes significant progress on its EU-related reforms, in particular in the area of the fundamentals;

	15f. Considers that EU policy on Bosnia and Herzegovina has failed and has not succeeded in helping the country overcome its deep political stalemate, and calls for its review; regrets the lifting of US sanctions on actors undermining the Dayton framework and the country's sovereignty, territorial integrity, and its social cohesion, and the US push to curtail the powers of the High Representative; urges the Member States and the EU to reach agreement with like-minded partners in the Peace Implementation Council on a fully empowered High Representative; considers the 5+2 agenda no longer fit for purpose and calls for it to be replaced by a concrete, tailored roadmap for the closure of the OHR, aligned with the 14 key priorities of the Commission's Opinion, which would give domestic actors clear incentives and demonstrate the international community's commitment to closure, while making clear that the conditions for closure are not currently met; is open to a gradual relocation of the OHR outside the country as part of this roadmap, provided that the High Representative's authority and executive powers remain intact until closure; notes that the Growth Plan and other EU funding instruments have failed to provide any meaningful leverage over political actors who benefit from the status quo, as shown by the two-year delay in adopting the reform agenda, which cost Bosnia and Herzegovina EUR 108 million in allocated funds, and by the fact that, by July 2026, none of the agenda's 113 reform steps had been completed; calls, therefore, for the EU to rely on instruments with genuine political weight, including a wholly different political engagement and strategic communications, targeted restrictive measures against actors threatening the sovereignty, territorial integrity and constitutional order of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and tangible support for positive actors; supports the continuation of EUFOR Althea with an executive mandate to help protect the territorial integrity, independence and sovereignty of BiH;

16b. Reiterates its position that there is no fast track to full membership of the Union; calls for the Council, Commission and Member States to exercise maximum innovative thinking to ensure that the discussions around enlargement methodology advance swiftly; recalls that the current enlargement methodology is not delivering the intended outcomes as a result of a combination of factors, including Member states's vetoes, lack of political will in accession countries to implement reforms, and the lacklustre approach by the EU and Member States in confronting these challenges; welcomes recent announcement by Council President Costa to introduce qualified majority voting for the opening of clusters; repeats its calls to enhance the credibility, predictability, and dynamism of the enlargement process and the EU's capacity to act by reforming its decision-making on enlargement, including through the introduction of qualified majority voting on the intermediate steps in the accession process, in particular on the start of negotiations and the opening and closing of individual negotiating clusters and chapters;

	16a. Reiterates its firm belief that Kosovo's future lies in the EU; fully supports Kosovo's application for EU membership; reiterates its call on the Member States within the Council to invite the Commission to present its questionnaire without undue delay and to submit its opinion on the merits of the country's application for membership and call on the Council to act swiftly thereafter, including by granting candidate status once the relevant criteria are fulfilled; calls on the five Member States that have not yet recognised Kosovo's independence to do so without delay to enable it to advance on an equal footing with other candidates; regrets, however, the paralysed political process during 2025 and 2026 that resulted in two 'lost years' for Kosovo, further frustrating the citizens as the country is not able to deliver on the necessary reforms and risks losing even further significant amounts of financial support under the Reform and Growth Facility;

	16c. Welcomes the lifting of all measures against Kosovo; considers that there is no legal reasons or concerns that should prevent EU Member States to recognize Kosovo, as Kosovo's legal status, as confirmed by the ICJ, has no similarity to any other situation in Member States; calls upon those Member States that do not recognize Kosovo to do so without delay; urges the Council to accept Kosovo's application for EU membership; considers it, in light of the EU treaty framework not strictly necessary for the Commission to wait for the Council to accept Kosovo's membership application for it to start preparing the Opinion on Kosovo's application, applying similar logic to the frontloading it did for Ukraine's accession negotiations; urges the Commission to do so, despite repeated recent stalemates in Kosovo's system of democratic governance;
