to the Commission
Rule 144
Nikolaos Anadiotis (NI)

Subject: Increased cost to European consumers due to Turkish legislation on car navigation systems

Türkiye prohibits the manufacture of cars with built-in navigation maps unless they are approved by the Turkish army. Car makers conforming to Turkish legislation therefore import cars into the EU without maps and add them at a later stage, either at European hubs or when they reach the national importers. The result of this Turkish legislation and practice is a rise in cost and the additional burden this brings for European consumers.

In other words, Türkiye is imposing its own foreign policy on factories, in contempt of the EU, which, be it noted, puts up with this and panders to Türkiye, forcing the European consumer to buy more expensive products.

In view of the above:

1. What measures does the Commission intend to take to protect European consumers from the increased financial burden due to Turkish legislation?
2. Does it intend to take measures to counter Turkish policy which affects the manufacture of products for the EU single market?
