Subject: NGO funding through the LIFE programme

Given the recent reports about work programmes, allegedly coordinated by the Commission and non-governmental organisations (NGOs), which include political activities such as combating coal-fired power plants and free trade agreements, we request answers to the following questions:

1. To what extent are the work programmes submitted by funded NGOs made publicly accessible to enable independent review and oversight by the public and the relevant supervisory authorities?
2. What steps does the Commission plan to take to reform the awarding practices of the LIFE programme to avoid potential conflicts of interest and ensure the independence of the NGOs funded?

We would appreciate a swift response on this issue.
