Subject: New Frontex training centre in Warsaw

Frontex, the European Border and Coast Guard Agency, is setting up a new training centre for EU border guards at the University of Sport Science in Warsaw, close to the agency's headquarters. Hans Leijten, Director of Frontex, and Tomasz Siemoniak, Polish Minister of the Interior, have signed a cooperation agreement to make this a reality. The centre will offer modern training facilities and support the 'growing' requirements of Frontex's Standing Corps. The centre will initially train 200 officers, with capacity for further courses to be organised.

1. What is the current manpower of the four categories of the Standing Corps and what increase is planned by 2027 for category 1?
2. What content is to be taught in the new training centre and to what extent does this also affect categories 2-4 of the Standing Corps?
3. How does the Commission intend to implement the President's announcement that the Standing Corps is to be increased to 30 000 civil servants, and how many of them will be assigned to category 1?
