

Question for written answer E-003454/2025
to the Commission
Rule 144
Dimitris Tsiodras (PPE)

Subject: Commission action to address the impact of US tariffs on European agri-food products

The recent EU-US trade agreement includes the application of 15 % tariffs on European agricultural exports to the US, while the EU will provide improved (preferential) access for certain US agri-food products to the European market.

At the same time, products from certain non-EU countries will continue to be subject to lower tariffs in the US, which puts European producers at a disadvantage.

These tariffs significantly harm the competitiveness and sustainability of the European agri-food sector. At the same time, they add to a number of challenges that the agri-food sector is facing, such as the impact of the climate crisis on harvests and production and rising costs. At the same time, there is a risk of a significant influx of US agricultural products that do not meet current EU standards.

In view of the above:

1. Will the Commission map and fully analyse the impact of the agreement on the agricultural sector, jobs and the economic viability of agricultural regions?
2. Will the Commission draw up a specific plan to address this impact and ensure a level playing field for European producers?

Submitted: 5.9.2025