to the Commission
Rule 144
Kathleen Van Brempt (S&D)

Subject: Implementation of fossil fuel phase-out commitments by EU export credit agencies

In December 2025, the Commission published its report on export credit agencies (ECAs)¹, which reviews Member States' policies on the phase-out of fossil fuel support.

The report states that 'the Commission supports further progress in this area, including further strengthening of Member States' commitments regarding the phase-out of fossil fuels'.

In this context:

1. What kind of support is the Commission providing to ensure further progress and strengthen Member States' commitments to phase out export credit support for fossil fuel projects, and does this support include concrete guidance, coordination, monitoring or enforcement measures?
2. How does the Commission assess the compatibility of continued support by certain EU ECAs for fossil-fuel-related activities with EU climate objectives and relevant arrangements under the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development and what action is the Commission taking in this regard?
3. Following the recent decisions by the Atradius Dutch State Business and UK Export Finance to withdraw their support for the Mozambique liquefied natural gas project, will the Commission engage with Member States' ECAs that may still consider supporting this project, and what steps is it taking to ensure that its export credit policies address human rights violations associated with the project and align with the EU's climate neutrality objective?
