

Question for written answer E-001788/2026
to the Commission

Rule 144

Afroditi Latinopoulou (PfE)

Subject: Redistributing multiannual financial framework funds towards national security, the demographic problem and primary production

The new multiannual financial framework (MFF) should serve the real needs of European citizens and not be a vehicle for enforcing the woke agenda. For Greece, the priorities should be national survival and security.

In view of the above, can the Commission answer the following:

1. Does it intend to increase funds for the preventive guarding of the Greek border and for mass deportations, instead of wasting resources on NGOs and 'integration' programmes that alter European identity?
2. Does it intend to establish specific funds to support the traditional Greek family and incentivise births, instead of promoting population replacement through migration?
3. Will it stop channelling billions into ideological action, such as 'gender budgeting', instead directing these resources towards truly necessary action, e.g. to the European and Greek farmers and livestock breeders crushed by the costs of the 'green' transition?
