

Question for written answer E-001993/2026
to the Commission
Rule 144
Loucas Furlas (PPE)

Subject: Türkiye's 'Blue Homeland' bill and implications for the Eastern Mediterranean

Türkiye is attempting to formally incorporate its so-called 'Blue Homeland' strategy into domestic law, promoting a policy that directly challenges the international law of the sea, the sovereign rights of the Republic of Cyprus and Greece, and stability in the Eastern Mediterranean.

This development constitutes a systematic effort to legitimise revisionist and expansionist claims against Member States of the European Union. Ankara is attempting to create a new fait accompli, ignoring the principles of international law.

The European Union cannot remain idle in the face of actions against the sovereignty and sovereign rights of its Member States.

Can the Commission therefore say:

1. How does it view Türkiye's latest attempt to institutionalise the 'Blue Homeland' strategy through its domestic legislation?
2. What specific measures does it intend to take to protect the sovereign rights of the Republic of Cyprus and Greece in the face of the ongoing Turkish provocations in the Eastern Mediterranean?
3. Does it intend to look into the possibility of political or diplomatic consequences for Türkiye?
