

Question for written answer E-003576/2026
to the Commission
Rule 144
Galato Alexandraki (ECR)

Subject: Incomplete implementation of EU rules on transparent and predictable working conditions in Greece

On 8 July 2026, the Commission opened an infringement procedure against Greece for failing to fully align national legislation with Directive (EU) 2019/1152 on transparent and predictable working conditions.

The directive enshrines the right of workers to receive timely information on key conditions such as working hours, pay and job stability. It also provides for protection against unpredictable working hours and last-minute assignments and establishes that mandatory training must be free of charge. Shortages particularly affect seasonal and precarious workers.

In view of the above, can the Commission answer the following:

1. What specific provisions of the Greek law does it consider to be incompatible with the directive?
2. Which categories of workers does it consider to be insufficiently protected?
3. What measures will it take if Greece fails to promptly remedy existing shortcomings, in particular in the tourism and catering sectors?
