Subject: Policy regarding allocation of structural funding for cross-border projects

Europe’s connectivity and the proper functioning of the internal market are two important objectives for the EU.

At present, there are still major problems in some EU Member States regarding national possibilities for improving connectivity in all aspects. The lack of good quality road and railway infrastructure is a serious obstacle to improving connectivity.

For the new multiannual financial framework, is the Commission considering a new policy regarding the allocation of structural funding for cross-border projects?
