

EN

E-002561/2024

Answer given by Mr Serafin
on behalf of the European Commission
(2.5.2025)

The European Anti-Fraud Office's (OLAF) final reports are subject to the rules of confidentiality, professional secrecy and protection of personal data under Article 10 of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 883/2013. The Regulation does not grant to a person concerned the right of access to OLAF's case file including the final report. OLAF may only grant such access to the relevant parts of a final report where the Director-General has recommended a judicial follow-up to its investigation under specific conditions laid down in Article 10(3b) of that Regulation.

The Commission has at its disposal a number of tools to protect the financial interests of the EU and its budget, namely, interruptions and suspensions of payments; as well as financial corrections in the event that a Member State has not fulfilled its obligations to investigate and correct irregularities. The contradictory procedure is on-going in the current case and is confidential until it is completed.

Where OLAF transmits information to EU or national authorities for further action and those authorities decide to proceed against the persons concerned, it is for those authorities to give access to the final report under their own procedural rules.