The anti-dumping procedure follows the standard time schedule. Since October 2025 imports are registered¹, and provisional anti-dumping measures, ranging from 57,7% to 90,1% were imposed on 28 March 2026². Definitive measures, if warranted, will be published by 25 September 2026, at the latest.

The impact of anti-dumping measures on the downstream industries is analysed in the context of EU interest analysis. However, this requires cooperation of the users of polyamide yarns. Upon initiation, 140 users of polyamide yarns identified in the complaint were invited to cooperate. Only three users and one user's association, registered themselves as interested parties. None of them filled in the user questionnaire. Only one provided comments concerning the product scope and not on the impact of measures on the downstream industry. Two other users (not registered as interested parties) provided general comments on the possible negative impact of the measures on the downstream industry, but these were not supported by any evidence or data.

The trade defence instruments used by the Commission are designed for restoring the level playing field on the EU market when it is disrupted by unfair practices of dumped imports. Following the imposition of provisional measures, the Commission will further assess the effect of the measures on the EU producers and users of polyamide yarns. In case the downstream industry faces pressure from cheap imports, it can also submit a complaint and request an anti-dumping investigation.
