Subject: European Globalisation Adjustment Fund

The European Globalisation Adjustment Fund (EGF) offers one-off, agile and tailored support to reintegrate workers affected by company insolvency into the labour market, for example through job search assistance, career guidance and counselling, as well as other measures supporting re-entry into the labour market. In particular, the fund is used in the case of major restructurings, company insolvencies and structural changes brought about by green and digital transition.

1. How many of the total affected workers — broken down by year, sector, company and Member State — have been successfully reintegrated into the labour market following completion of the funded measures?
2. How many of the workers underwent retraining as part of the EGF measures before they could be reintegrated into the labour market?
